Ever the changeling willing to shift with whichever direction the financial winds blow, Bill Gates has recently softened his doomsday rhetoric on climate change, a changing stance that no doubt reflects economic and political motives rather than genuine concern for the planet.

Jimmy Dore and Reportage author James Corbett discuss how global institutions like the UN and WHO use sustainability and public health narratives to centralize control over natural resources under the guise of environmental protection. They portray Gates and other elites as opportunists who profit from green technologies, data centers, and synthetic food industries while promoting fear-based policies.

The two conclude that the climate agenda has been co-opted by global power structures rooted in eugenics, population control, and corporate monopolization.

They slander RFK for not being a medical professional, ignoring Gates' 10+ year unelected biomedical interference.
